

The dashed line is the price the pool quotes at that instant. Trade against it and you leave it immediately: the bigger your order is relative to the reserves, the further down the curve you drag yourself before you are done.